Abstract: Compliance with the laws governing students with disabilities is a challenging task and can easily overwhelm even seasoned psychologists. Join attorneys Denise Lowell-Britt and Kim Davis for a scenario-based program where participants will learn about the legislative and legal updates regarding students with disabilities and review State Rule changes that impact the work you do and the way you do it.

Learning Objectives:

1. To understand the federal and state requirements relating to students with disabilities to remain compliant in your practice.
2. To learn how recent cases and federal agency guidance related to students with disabilities impacts the processes and procedures at your school(s).
3. To learn and understand the changes to state law and rules that impact the way you support students with disabilities.
3. To learn information and consider strategies to reduce a public school's legal liabilities.
