Denise Lowell-Britt has been practicing law at Udall Shumway since 1987 and has been an equity partner of the firm since 1993. Ms. Lowell-Britt is very pleased to devote her practice entirely to representing school districts, community colleges, charter schools and other public educational institutions. She heads the firm's education law group.

Ms. Lowell-Britt provides daily advice and assistance to school districts and other public educational institutions. Ms. Lowell-Britt advises and represents clients in matters that include but are not limited to: personnel issues; special education; Section 504 and ADA issues; student disciplinary hearings; student records; contracts; policy development; governing board liability and open meeting and public records issues. She has extensive experience working with matters involving the EEOC, OCR, DOJ, and the Arizona State Department of Education.

Ms. Lowell-Britt has been named a "Top Education Attorney" in Phoenix Magazine. She has been repeatedly selected by her peers as a "Best Lawyer in America" in the area of Education Law every year since 2007, including the most recent selection for 2019. Ms. Lowell-Britt has also been listed in the 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018 selections of Arizona's Finest Lawyers. The firm and Ms. Lowell-Britt have also been repeatedly identified as providing the highest quality legal services in the area of Government Relations in "Ranking Arizona: The Best of Arizona Business", including the most recent edition of this publication. In March 2009, Ms. Lowell-Britt was presented with the Lara Ganoung Award, which is CASE's highest award recognizing leadership in the area of special education. In September 2017, Ms. Lowell-Britt was awarded the John R. McDonald Award by the Arizona School Board Association. The John R. McDonald Award is given to an Arizona attorney whose outstanding contributions to Arizona public education merit high distinction. On November 2, 2018, the Arizona Association of School Psychologists (AASP) presented its first ever Honorary Membership Award to Ms. Lowell-Britt. On November 14, 2018 she was again honored to receive the 2018 Friend of ASPAA award from the Arizona School Personnel Administrators Association, in appreciation for her outstanding service and contributions.
